				A long, hard look at marriage and motherhood as expressed in the views of a group of young girls and married women. Their opinions cover a wide range. At regular intervals glossy advertisements extolling romance, weddings, babies, flash across the screen, in strong contrast to the words that are being spoken. The film ends on a sobering thought: the solution to dashed expectations could be as simple as growing up before marriage. Made as part of the Challenge for Change

Tells the story of a mole who went to the aid of a lion by pulling the lion's throbbing tooth. Heraldic trumpet s, luminescent light, and wild flowers tell their own message of rebirth in this version of the familiar story, told with the glowing, cameo-like cut-outs of animator Evelyn Lambert.  A fairy tale in silhouette, about two little girls named Snow White and Rose Red who were able to get an evil dwarf to release a prince from the spell that had turned him into a bear.  The carelessness of the hare and perseverance of the tortoise are well-iliustrated in this animated film where characters and animals develop to the rhythm of Rossini's Cinderella.  Mole's unexpected discovery of an old umbrella starts him out on an exciting set of animated adventures. An animated speculation about the quality of life in the 21st century. Follows the key events of a man born in the year 2000 as if he were reading his diary.  Animated film about the adventures of a little chick from the time he falls from an egg basket and breaks out of his shell.  A manically funny look at the tribulations of artists, who must fight society, inner doubts, and sometimes even uncooperative art supplies in order to create a masterpiece. (animated) A rambunctious baby's first view of the outside world quickly deprives him of his youthful innocence in this animated, black comedy.
